Course description

This course explores theoretical and empirical perspectives on sexuality. You will be introduced to shifting paradigms of sexuality research in the social sciences in general and in anthropology in particular. The readings reflect the interdisciplinary nature of sexuality studies and include (among others) theoretical perspectives from anthropology, feminist theory, migration studies, queer theory, and post-colonial theory. We will examine cases from different parts of the world that shed light on the differences and similarities in sexual practices, and on how sexual practices and norms are changing in an increasing transnational world. There will be an emphasis on exploring how the increased global flow of ideas, people and commodities are linked to sexuality, identity and intimate relations, and on the relationship between sex and issues such as politics, power, class, ethnicity and race.

Specific topics covered will include the impacts of globalization, migration and colonialism on gender and sexuality; sex work and questions of autonomy, agency and structure; transgender politics in different cultural contexts; global queering and activism, female genital modifications; sexual desire and pleasure and transnational surrogacy.

Learning outcomes
By the end of the course you will have

• acquired knowledge about different theoretical approaches to the study of sexuality in the social sciences in general and in anthropology in particular
• acquired an understanding of how concepts such as gender and sexuality change across languages, geographical regions, nations and cultures
• developed the ability to critically analyze and discuss key concepts such as gender, sexuality, globalization, transnationalism etc.

• the capacity to form your own opinion within debates about global sexualities, drawing on perspectives from inside and outside class
• developed an understanding of how the increased global flow of ideas, people, and commodities are linked to sexuality and intimate relations
• developed an understanding of how sexuality is linked to politics, class, race, inequality and power relations

Readings

Required readings are set for each week of the course. PDF copies of will be made available on Canvas under Resources. The following book are required for this course:
Adichie, C.N. (2013) Americanah

I also recommend the following book:

Note
This class deals with sexuality in an explicit manner. We will be reading and watching material featuring explicit sex scenes. If you do not want to do so, you may want to rethink taking the class. The topic addressed will sometimes be controversial. I encourage lively debate and expect students to behave with respect of other’s opinions. We come from a range of different backgrounds and social and political perspectives. It is therefore important to think carefully before we speak in class and not make assumptions about to whom, or for whom we are speaking.

Class requirements and assignments

Attendance and Participation in class (20 % of grade)
This is a seminar, not a lecture class. The success of the discussion depends on the participation of each student in class and on Canvas. Since the course only meets once a week, full attendance in all classes is essential. More than one absence may lower your grade.
If you have an excusable absence (see https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx) let me know in advance and I will consider whether you have to make up for the absence in one or another way.

Online discussion (20 % of grade)
You are expected to come to class having done all the assigned readings and to be ready to participate in discussions. I will strive to create an open, informal and inclusive environment. Each week you will submit a response to the readings in the online discussion forum. The entry should be submitted by midnight before the day of class and should express a summary and critical commentary on the assigned readings. It should not exceed 300 words. Students who use the discussion board actively (reply and comment on other students’ postings) will have the opportunity to earn extra credit.

There will also be an online discussion of the only book assigned for the course, the novel Americanah by Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie. You are required to post three reflections on topics that emerge in the book, and that are of relevance for the course on the discussion board in Canvas.

Facilitating (20 % of grade)

Each student must act as a facilitator for the weekly class meetings – a role that entails presenting and leading the class discussion on the assigned readings. The week you act as a facilitator you are expected to do the following:

1) Write a written summary and presentation of ONE of the readings. This should be a minimum two pages document that you upload as an attachment. It should include the following:
   - a summary of the main points of the argument in the article
   - the aim of the scholarly interventions or research inquiry (where relevant)
   - an analysis of the author’s theoretical frames and methodology
   - a critique of the arguments and evidence to support your critique
   - keyword definitions, highlighting unfamiliar terminology and concepts
   - links you make to other readings or topics

You will be given 15 minutes to present your summary, reflections and critique in the beginning of class the day we will discuss the readings.

2) Prepare minimum ten questions generated from all of the readings assigned for that particular class. Be prepared to facilitate the discussion.

Sign up for facilitation will take place first day of class.

ANT 4930

Short papers (40 % of grade)

You will write two short papers during the course. Instructions for each paper will be available on Canvas.

ANG 6930

Papers (40 % of grade)

Graduate students will write one short paper, (10% of grade), a book review (10% of grade) and a final research paper (approximately 15 pp in length, 20 % of grade). The
A book review should be of an ethnography of relevance to the course topic. You are expected to search for the book yourself, but I should approve it. Proposals for the final papers, including abstract, a short outline and a preliminary bibliography should be submitted to me before mid-term. These papers may focus on a suitable research question, or may be a literature review of a specific topic of relevance to the course. I encourage you to meet with me 2-3 times during the semester to discuss your papers.

Plagiarism

All the papers must be uploaded to Canvas. Plagiarism of any sort will not be tolerated and the papers may be subject to control through Turnitin.

Please note that acts of plagiarism include:

- Turning in a paper or assignment that was written by someone else.
- Copying verbatim a sentence or paragraph of text from the work of another author without proper citation and quotation marks.
- Paraphrasing or restating in your own words, text or ideas written by someone else without proper citation.

Student should use a proper citation style, e.g. the American Anthropological Association citation style: http://www.aaanet.org/publications/style_guide.pdf

UF Policies

Academic Honesty: When students enroll at UF they commit themselves to honesty and integrity. As a result of completing the registration form at the University of Florida, every student has signed the following statement: “I understand the University of Florida expects its students to be honest in all their academic work. I agree to adhere to this commitment to academic honesty and understand that my failure to comply with this commitment may result in disciplinary action up to and including expulsion from the University.”

On work submitted for credit by UF students, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.”

Campus Helping Resources: Students experiencing crisis or personal problems that interfere with their general wellbeing are encouraged to utilize the university’s counseling resources. The UF Counseling and Wellness Center provides confidential counseling services at no cost for currently enrolled students.
