Course Description and Content:
Catalog Description: Examination of the cultural bases for the consumption of commodities in modern society, employing anthropological concepts and social science methods. Primary emphasis is on the social relationships enacted between people and the things they live with.

Content: Anthropological theories and concepts are employed to investigate the close relationships that link people and the made things they live with—‘their “material culture”’—especially relationships that drive consumption beyond basic needs. Categories of material culture given special focus are clothing, household furnishings, and techno-gear. We examine how these things circulate in our modern society through studies of gifting, shopping, advertising, the “rituals” of product use, heirlooming, and the ecology and politics of recycling and trashing. Specific topics include things and identity, extending our bodies and our selves through the things (real and virtual) we manipulate, creating relationships to other people via things, the meanings attributed to things, the social lives of things, the sensuality and authenticity of things, and the practices and consequences of object discard.

This course welcomes students in any major.

Course Objectives and Goals:
Students will learn about the major concepts and theorists relevant to material culture studies and apply those concepts to real-world examples. With the focus on contemporary Euro-American society, students will use these concepts and their developing skill in fundamental social science methods to observe and analyze their own cultural patterns and their individual consumptive practices. By participating in active learning scenarios and through reflective essays and blog posts, students will better understand how their ideas about themselves and social others as well as their everyday practices are shaped by larger cultural forces, thereby developing greater self-awareness and senses of personal agency. They will also gain new perspectives on the sustainability of current lifestyles and the possibilities of making better informed choices for themselves. The “enduring knowledge statements” for this course are: 1) the things we acquire, use, and discard are active social agents; 2) the things we make, make us as social beings; and 3) living with things has social, political, and material consequences.

E-learning
This course is managed by e-learning (http://lss.at.ufl.edu). The Resources tool has most of the required readings, except for journal articles you can download through the library. Resources are kept in folders by week. Scores on assignments and exams are available in the Feedback (not Gradebook) tool. Check the Announcements tool regularly to keep up-to-date with course announcements.
Required Textbook and Other Required Readings:

We read only some chapters out of this book. If you do not wish to purchase it, save money by reading the copy on reserve in Library West, or share the purchase or rental price among a group.

Most required readings are drawn from book chapters and journal articles dealing with material culture and anthropological consumer studies, as well as some blogs and magazine articles. Book chapters and articles not in online journals are available on the Resources tool on e-learning. You can download or view articles in online journals through the library website by searching for the journal title. See instructions (item #7) to access on-line journals from off-campus computers with the VPN client.

Important: Readings should be completed before the class period for which they are assigned (the “flipped classroom”). We use class meeting times to discuss the readings, so you must be prepared to participate in the discussion. For the double period on Thursday, readings are listed separately for each period, but obviously they must be completed before the first period.

Strategies for Success

- Attend class—be on time and be prepared. Keep up with all the readings each week. Create a glossary of the major concepts that are discussed. Ask questions in class or by email if you have any difficulty understanding the material. Meet with me in person. You are asked to think, be imaginative, look for patterns, apply concepts, and make interpretive judgments—not just memorize material.

Acceptance of Course Requirements

By remaining registered in this class, you agree to accept the course requirements and expectations as stated in this syllabus. These are in addition to other general University requirements and codes of conduct as stated in official documents and mentioned on pp. 3-4 of this syllabus.

Grade Evaluation and Methods

3 exams

The exams will be administered in class and will consist of short-answer definitions of major terms and brief essays to assess comprehension of the major concepts and their applications to real life. Each exam is worth 15% of the grade.

10 homework assignments

To evaluate how you are applying knowledge and engaging in self-reflection, and to facilitate class discussion exercises, for specific lectures you are asked to post an essay on the discussion portal or to write a blog post. Suggested length is 300-500 words; specific instructions are given with each assignment. Each assignment is worth 2% of the grade. The first homework essay is required of everyone, but for blog posts, choose 9 to do. Students who do more than 9 posts can earn extra credit.

participation in in-class activities

Every lecture period will include a class discussion, small group discussion, or a class activity. Everyone is expected to be prepared for and to participate in these activities. They account for approximately 1.4% of the grade for each regular class week.

poster project

In week 4 you will be introduced to a research project, to “follow a thing” through its social or use-life and beyond. This project will result in a poster to be presented in the last week of class, requiring a brief oral presentation. Each poster will also be accompanied by a short written description of the project with bibliography. The grade is based on the quality of the research and of the poster, the oral presentation, and the accompanying script.

Total: 100%
Critical dates for exams or other work
   Exam 1: Tuesday, Feb. 11
   Exam 2: Tuesday, March 18
   Exam 3: Tuesday, April 22
   Poster Project: topic deadline: Tuesday, Feb. 18 project description (300 words) with starter bibliography (5 entries): Tues. Mar. 25
                Presentation: double period Thursday April 17
   Final poster and script to be loaded on e-learning Monday April 28 (date of the scheduled final)

Class Demeanor Expected by the Professor Students are expected to be in their seats at the start of class. Cell phones should be silenced and out of sight, except when used in class activities. Laptop computers and tablets are allowed ONLY to read any electronic readings, for note-taking, and on certain days to facilitate class activities.

Policy Related to Class Attendance and Missed Exams
   Attendance Policy: Although daily attendance per se is not taken, participation in in-class activities is recorded and is worth 15% of the final grade.
   Make-up Exam Policy: Students may take an exam within one week after the due date with no penalty by asking the professor for permission ahead of time to take a make-up. The make-up exam will be different from the original exam. Please make every effort to take the exam with the class.
   Late Homework policy: Because you have a choice of blog posts, there is no allowance for a missed due date. If you miss the due date for a post, choose a later one to take its place.
   Late submission of poster project: Except for university-wide excused absences, poster projects should be turned in by the due date. They lose 25% of their value for every day late.
    For university policy see https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx.

UF Grading policy and Course Grading Requirements
    For information on current UF grading policies for assigning grade points see https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/grades.aspx
    Every graded activity in this course earns points. Letter grades are based on a total of 300 points; see grading scale below. Important: If a minimum grade of C is required to fulfill certain graduation requirements, C- does not fulfill those requirements. GPA points for each letter grade are provided in the bottom line of the chart.

The following information is provided in conformance with University Policy:
1. Policy related to class attendance, make-up exams, and other work Requirements for class attendance, make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found in the online catalog at:

2. Accommodations for students with disabilities
   Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Professor when requesting accommodation. Upon receipt of documentation, the Professor will grant the accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow these procedures as early as possible in the semester.

3. Online course evaluation process

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course based on 10 criteria. These evaluations are conducted online at https://evaluations.ufl.edu. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results

4. Religious Observances

Students seeking modification of due dates for class participation, assignments, and exams for religious reasons (e.g., holiday observances) should contact the Professor and request this modification; it will then be granted.

5. Academic Honesty

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge which states, “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: ‘On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.’” The Honor Code (http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code/) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor or any TAs assigned to this class. Instances of dishonesty include conducting unauthorized research on the internet and failing to cite sources of information on any work submitted, as well as unauthorized collaborating with students or others to determine the answers on assignments and exams.

6. Counseling and Emergency Services

– the University Counseling Center, 301 Peabody Hall, 392-1575
  http://www.counseling.ufl.edu/cwc/Default.aspx
– Student Health Care Center, 392-1171 – Career Resource Center, Reitz Union, 392-1601
– Center for Sexual Assault/Abuse Recovery and Education (CARE), Student Health Care Center, 392-1161
– University Police Department 392-1111 (non-emergency); call 9-1-1 for emergencies

7. Electronic Course Reserves

The electronic course reserve service is offered by the George A. Smathers Libraries. Under the Rehabilitation Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act, students with disabilities have the right to equal access, use and benefit of the course materials that have been placed on reserve in the Libraries.

Students who have registered with the University of Florida Disability Resource Center should initiate their request for assistance and accommodation in accessing these materials. The Center will work with the Libraries Course Reserve Unit to provide accessible course materials. All information submitted by the student to the Libraries in fulfilling the request for accommodation will be kept confidential. For more information on services for students with disabilities, contact the UF Disability Resource Center at 352-392-8565 or at accessuf@dso.ufl.edu. For general information on course reserves, please contact the Course Reserves Unit at 352-273-2520, or email at eres@uflib.ufl.edu.

It is best to use the UF VPN client when accessing electronic materials course reserve materials as well as e-books, on-line journals, databases, etc. offered by the library. The VPN client is easily installed and configured, and provides easy access to electronic materials using off-campus computers. For more information on using the VPN client, go to http://www.uflib.ufl.edu/login/vpn.html

Software Regulations

All faculty, staff and students of the University are required and expected to obey the laws and legal agreements governing software use. Failure to do so can lead to monetary damages and/or criminal penalties for the individual violator. Because such violations are also against University policies and rules, disciplinary action will be taken as appropriate.
Tentative Topics, Readings, and Assignments – subject to change

Woodward = textbook; [Lib] = the journal/newspaper article is available online, usually from the library website
urls are given for other materials accessible online; other readings (book chapters) are available directly as pdf files
Required readings are to be completed by the class meeting date; note the required pages of a chapter or article.
Reading and Homework assignments are tentative, and any changes will be announced well in advance.
