Course Description

This course introduces core concepts and issues in cultural anthropology. In the first section, we will discuss the field of anthropology, the nature of anthropological research and the concept of culture. In the second section, we will examine language, the role of the individual, ritual, and meaning. This discussion will also touch on the nature of power and the universal necessities of human life, and how they vary among cultures. Finally, we will look at society in terms of the relationships we share with other humans in forms of kinship, marriage, family, social groups, and the modern world system. Throughout the semester we will look at examples from specific cultural groups to both examine the realm of human diversity and the universality of basic human experiences.

Course Objectives

In taking this course, you are expected to begin to:

1. Apply basic anthropological concepts to your own life,
2. Understand some central perspectives used in this field,
3. Adopt an inter-disciplinary approach to the study of people, and
4. Appreciate human diversity, past and present.

Required Texts

Ember, Carol R. and Melvin Ember

Rabinow, Paul

Other reading materials will be provided by the instructor on E-Learning.

Exams

Exams will be taken in class. The final will focus on themes in the last portion of the class, but will also ask you to think about the major case studies in terms of those themes. Exams have a combination of multiple choice, short answer, and essay questions. Exams cover ALL of the readings, lectures, and other material for a given section.

Attendance at exams is critical. Make-ups are allowed only for special circumstances. In the case of a planned absence, you need to contact the instructor well in advance of your absence. For emergencies, contact me as soon as possible. The validity of your absence for an exam, provided you bring a doctor’s note or other documentation, will be determined by the instructor.

Essay

The essay assignment will require you to analyze how various cultural topics we have discussed, such as class, ethnicity, and gender, have affected and played a role in your life, and contrast these roles with those of another cultural group that we have studied in class. A different topic may be explored if you receive prior approval from the instructor.

You MUST to submit an electronic copy formatted in MS Word (.doc) to E-Learning, utilizing turnitin.org, as well as a hard copy of the essay.

Attendance on the due date for the essay is crucial, as essay is due at the beginning of class on the assigned date. 10% of the final score will be deducted for each day that it is late. If you are going to be absent, make arrangements to turn in your essay early. Exceptions will be made only for illness or other special circumstances.

You may obtain assistance (for brainstorming, organization, and editing) from peers, or the writing center on campus. However, your ideas should be your own. As discussed below, the principles of academic honesty apply.

Attendance

You are responsible for all items covered in the readings, lectures, and other materials. Regularly attending the lectures makes it much easier to keep up with the material covered, and prepare for the tests.

Attendance will be taken during lectures in the form of 10 pop quizzes given throughout the semester to ensure you are doing the readings and attending the lectures. These will be given at the discretion of the instructor. In the event that you do miss class, make sure you ask your fellow classmates for their notes about material covered that day.

Classroom Etiquette

Cell phones are permitted in class only as [silent] clocks. If your phone rings in class or I notice that you are texting, I will ask you to step outside to take care of your business and not come back that day.

Laptops, tablets, and other computing devices can be used as note taking devices or study aids. However, you should not use these devices to surf the internet, work on other coursework, or play games in class. Please be courteous to your fellow students, so that everyone can learn without distraction. Failure to use your laptop, tablet, or computing device appropriately in class will result in me asking you to leave the lecture.

E-Learning

Assigned readings, exam reviews, general announcements, essay submissions, and links to extra class material will be posted on the main E-Learning site. This site is labeled ANT 2410 S2013.

Dates for Dropping and Withdrawals

Incompletes will be granted in cases of emergency. For undergraduates, after one year an Incomplete automatically turns into an F, if the work has not been completed.

Students with Disabilities

The University of Florida complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Students requesting accommodation should contact the Students with Disabilities Office, Peabody 202. That office will provide documentation to the student whom must then provide this documentation to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Please do let me know as soon as possible as well, and we will make every attempt we possibly can to make the necessary accommodations.

I look forward to learning with and from you in this class. Please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns you might have. It is very important to me that you feel comfortable meeting with or e-mailing me when you have questions or feel that you need additional assistance.
Plagiarism

Plagiarism is a serious violation of the Student Honor Code. The Honor Code prohibits and defines plagiarism as follows:
Plagiarism. A student shall not represent as the student’s own work all or any portion of the work of another. Plagiarism includes (but is not limited to):
a.) Quoting oral or written materials, whether published or unpublished, without proper attribution.
b.) Submitting a document or assignment which in whole or in part is identical or substantially identical to a document or assignment not authored by the student.

University of Florida students are responsible for reading, understanding, and abiding by the entire Student Honor Code.

Important Tip: You should never copy and paste something from the internet without providing the exact location from which it came.
