Course Description: Anthropology is the study of humankind in all times and places. This course is designed to introduce the student to the four subfields of anthropology: cultural anthropology, archaeology, physical anthropology, and linguistics.

The exploration of these subfields will highlight the rich diversity of human cultural experience and evaluate how both culture and biology consciously and unconsciously shapes our thoughts and actions. Through this process, it is intended that the student will come to reflect upon and critically examine their own cultural values and the role it plays in their life.

This course will also investigate the relevance of anthropology to large-scale global issues such as warfare, economics, and environmental degradation and preservation. An emphasis is placed upon the recognition of the interconnectedness of humanity, not only in the present condition, but also in the past.

Finally, the class will delve into questions centered upon the significance of knowing our past through the observation of how it comes into play in both present and future concerns.

Course Objectives:

- To provide a thorough exploration of the four subfields of anthropology.
- Underscore the relevance of anthropology in both the macro and micro scale, from global to personal concerns.
- Develop an appreciation for the rich complexity and breadth of human diversity.
- Examine the interplay between biology and culture.
- Assess the role of the past to the present and future.

Grading: Grades will be determined by three exams and six critical thinking assignments. The point breakdown is as follows: Exam 1= 50 points, Exam 2= 50 points, Exam 3= 50 points, Critical Thinking Assignments= 10 points each x 6= 60 points. This comes out to a total of 210 points.

Critical Thinking Assignments: You are responsible for turning in six critical thinking assignments over the course of the semester. At the end of each chapter in your textbook is a section titled Questions for Reflection. You will pick one of these questions from the chapter that is currently assigned and write a 1 page minimum- 2 page maximum response.

Paper Format: You should have a cover page that has the following information- your name, course ID (ANT 2000), and the question you are answering. NOTE: THE TITLE PAGE DOES NOT COUNT TOWARDS THE PAPER LENGTH. Your paper should be typed in Times New Roman, double-spaced, 12 point font, 1-inch margins.

Assignments are due on Friday at the end of class (1:40pm) of each week over the course of the semester starting with Week 3. No late assignments are accepted.

You must submit both an electronic copy through Sakai and a paper copy in class. You must turn in both versions on time to receive credit. Electronic copies are submitted via the course Sakai website under the Assignments tab. You are responsible for submitting your paper in the appropriate file format (.doc or .docx).

You have roughly 14 weeks to turn in 6 papers. Only one paper can be turned in each week. You are responsible for managing your time and planning ahead to meet these requirements. These questions are designed to apply anthropological principles to real-life issues. There are no "correct" answers and, therefore, the questions will require you to think critically.

Course Grading Scale:

A 93-100	A- 90-92.9	B+ 87-89.9	B 83-86.9	B- 80-82.9
C+ 77-79.9	C 73-76.9	C- 70-72.9	D+ 67-69.9	D 63-66.9
D- 60-62.9	E 59.9 and below

To figure out your grade, simply divide the total points you have earned by the total possible points and multiply by 100.

Grade Dispute Policy: Concerns about grades should be addressed within 48 hours of when they are posted. Otherwise, all grades become final after the 48 hour deadline.

Extra Credit: Extra credit may be offered through the course of the semester, however, it is not guaranteed.

Make-up Exam Policy: Make-up exams will be administered for students who miss the regularly scheduled exam due to a University approved excused absence such as illness, serious family emergencies, religious holidays, court-imposed legal obligations, and participation in official university activities. Documentation (doctor's note, etc.) is required to substantiate your absence.

Attendance Policy: Attendance for this course is not required but is strongly recommended.

Student Conduct: All students must comply with the Student Conduct Code which can found at www.dso.ufl.edu/studentguide/studentconductcode.php. Any behavior that interferes with either the instructor's ability to conduct the class or the ability of other students to benefit from the instructional program will not be tolerated. Please turn off cell phones and all other electronic devices before class. Laptops may only be used to take notes. Disruptive students will be asked to leave.

Academic Honesty: Academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. As a registered student in this course and at the University of Florida, you have agreed to the following statement: "I understand that the University of Florida expects its students to be honest in all their academic work. I agree to adhere to this commitment to academic honesty and understand that my failure to comply with this commitment may result in disciplinary action up to and including expulsion from the University." If you are caught plagiarizing or cheating on exams or assignments you will receive an automatic zero and will be referred to University administration for disciplinary action. If you have any questions please refer to the University's Honor Code which is available online at: www.registrar.ufl.edu/catalog/policies/students.html

Disability Accommodations: Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the instructor when requesting accommodation. The Disability Resource office is located in 001 Reid Hall. Further information can be found at www.dso.ufl.edu/drp.
